Session on Presentation and Communication skills

On Wednesday, 23rd of October, a session on presentation and communication skills was conducted by Ms. Naheed Haq in the Video Conference room for the students of Software Engineering. The session however, was open for all to attend. The activity focused on infusing better presentation and communication skills within the students in order for them to be better able to communicate their thoughts and ideas to an audience.

Ms. Naheed Haq presented the strong faculties that a person needs to exhibit in order to effectively communicate with an audience while presenting. The students who attended the session were made to participate in different activities that would test their presentation and communication skills. The students were even encouraged to talk on different topics with the audience.

The session was arranged by Mr. Hassan Zafar Qayum, whose main aim was to introduce the first semester Software Engineering students to the art of effective presentation.
